Humans are not the only ones with a musical instinct. Gibbons have it too. From morning songs to mating songs, or even the fight songs, they have a rich variety to pick from! Songs are a way to unite, and protect them from danger.

This documentary has filmed many such songs of the white-handed gibbons at Thailand’s Khao Yai National Park and of the siamangs at Sumatra, Indonesia. During filming in May 2016, an earthquake with a magnitude of 6.1 struck. The film has captured siamang gibbons’ disaster songs too!
